Vero pitches in to build Sophie's new home

Sydney, 28 November 2006: Sophie Delezio is getting a new home. The Delezio family is building a special home for Sophie to live in for the rest of her life. The tailor-made home will accommodate Sophie's specific needs as a result of her injuries sustained from two major car accidents.

Vero Insurance Limited (Vero) is pitching in to ensure that the quality of the home is guaranteed by agreeing to meet the cost of the home warranty insurance.

General Manager of Vero Warranty, Paul Jameson said Vero is pleased to be able to contribute to such an important project.

"Meeting the cost of the home warranty insurance means that not only will the Delezio home be covered if something happens to the builder, but they can use the extra money for other family needs," Mr Jameson said.

HIA insurance brokers will facilitate the transaction through Vero so that the builder and the Delezio family can focus on other aspects of building the new home.

The builder, Pimas Gale Construction began building Sophie's special home in August. Managing Director Terry Gale is a quality builder who has been working closely with the architects and physiotherapists to ensure the home meets the requirements of Sophie and her family.

"Pimas Gale is a Vero Warranty builder and a cut above the rest. We couldn't be supporting anyone better to assist the Delezio family", said Mr Jameson.
